We are a bespoke consultancy company based in eastern Australia. One of our partners is a qualified German brewer who has been in Australia for over five years. We design, procure and project manage new breweries. A number of our clients are looking for qualified young brewers to operate and manage their brand-new breweries and who are willing to travel to Australia on a working holiday Visa and have the opportunity to seek permanent residency if they are eligible and also if they are suited to the prospective employer.

The ideal candidate

- Bachelor or Master in Brewing and Beverage Technology or Brewmaster
- Work experience preferable 3 years in a small-medium sized brewery, can include apprenticeship
- Work experience on semi-automatic brewhouse
- Must speak English
- Knowledge of OSHA or safety standards and HACCP
- Good communication skills
- Attention to detail
- Problem solving
- Able to self-fund travel to Australia under a working holiday Visa
- Willing to spend at least two years in Australia

Opportunities

The micro brewing industry in Australia is still very much in its infancy. At the moment there are around 500 microbreweries and this is expanding rapidly, particularly small breweries that are being built in combinations with food and beverage offerings.

To date, in Australia there are very limited opportunities for young people wishing to study brewing as there are no undergraduate courses available. Most brewers either start their career as an extension of home brewing or learn on the job in bigger breweries.

Australia is a great country to live and work in as salaries are excellent and the climate in general is very conducive to activities outside of work. The nation is one of the most multicultural countries in the world and welcomes people from all nationalities. It is imperative that the candidates have an understanding of written and spoken English as there is not a lot of people who speak a number of languages.
